

Q & A

Is the content and structure of WSIR similar to those of other small academic finance conferences?

“Yes” and “No”: “Yes,” since WSIR also has a small number of papers on its program; “No,” since, unlike some other small meetings, WSIR is focused on investments / asset pricing / asset management topics rather than the entire finance field.

Does WSIR accept Corporate Finance, Market Microstructure, or Banking papers?

Yes, absolutely, as long as some findings of such papers are related to investments or investors’ actions and behavior.

Does WSIR accept Climate, ESG, and FinTech papers?

Yes, as long as the overall topic of these papers is related to the theme of the symposium.

Should a paper that receives an R&R at some journal BEFORE the submission deadline be withdrawn even if it is already submitted to WSIR?

Yes, we would appreciate if the authors of such papers inform us of these instances. The submission fee will be fully refunded.

Should the authors of a paper that receives an R&R at some journal AFTER the submission deadline withdraw their paper?

No, after the submission deadline, all papers enter the standard review and selection process.
